2.6 Organizational Structure

This building is located on Kemal Ataturk Avenue, a crucial commercial area. Originally, it was supposed to have offices on top of shops. But in 2015, they decided to turn it into a fancy hotel. They had to change the design a lot to fit in with the area, the culture, and the times.

The design is special because it goes in different directions. There's a tall part connected to a wider part, making an "L" shape. This makes the building strong and useful. The goal was to make it look modern and fancy while keeping it simple. They wanted it to be a standout landmark in the city, like a big and special building along the busy street.

Chapter 03
Discussions and Analysis

3.1 Introduction

During my internship at the Sheraton, a five-star hotel with 250 hardworking individuals, I actively participated in managing and organizing all the employee files. I helped organize all the papers that go into each worker's file. At Sheraton Dhaka, where doing things perfectly is super important, making sure these files are well organized is a major job. It really helps the HR team do their work smoothly.

In this chapter, there is a discussion about the specific steps to make sure that employee files are well organized and easy to handle. 3.4.1 File Management Process

Step 01: Document Standardization

The HR team at SD provides a standardized format that serves as an attachment to the inner cover of the employee file. The format includes a checklist outlining all the necessary documents required to collect, update, and complete the employee file.

Analysis: Using the same checklist for each employee's file, make sure they include all the needed documents. This way, everything is consistent, and they can avoid missing important papers.

Step 02: Document Collection

The process begins with the collection of relevant documents for each associate. These documents include resumes, job applications, offer letters, identification proofs, educational certificates, and any other essential paperwork.

Analysis: This step is crucial as it establishes the foundation of an associate's file, providing an overview of their professional background and qualifications.

Step 03: File Creation

After gathering all the needed papers, HR's make a file of individuals with their name, I'd, and position. This file keeps all the important details about their job in one place, making it easy to find and organize everything related to their work.

Analysis: Making separate files for individuals helps keep their information in neat sections. This way, it's simpler for the HR team to find exactly what they need when they're looking for specific data.

Step 04: Data Entry and File Update

The HR team enters relevant details into the associate's file, including personal information, contact details, employment history, training records, and performance evaluations. Regular updates are made to ensure that the information remains current.

Analysis: Accurate and up-to-date data is essential for decision-making processes, such as promotions, salary adjustments, and performance assessments.

Step 05: Categorization and Indexing

Associates' files are categorized based on their employee ID numbers. A systematic indexing system is implemented to facilitate quick finding and getting the files when required.

Analysis: Categorization and indexing enhance the efficiency of the file management system, allowing HR staff to locate information promptly and accurately.

Step 06: Security Measures

Strictly control who can see HR files. Only the people in the HR department who are allowed can look at the employee files. This keeps everything confidential, keeps sensitive HR information safe, and avoids any unauthorized access.

Analysis: Maintaining a secure file management system is crucial to safeguarding sensitive employee information and maintaining a legal and ethical standard.

3.5 Challenges

As Sheraton is a pre-opening hotel, the associates who were there at the beginning might not organize files properly. Due to this, HR professionals often face various challenges when it comes to file management at present. This has resulted in ongoing challenges for HR professionals.

- There are difficulties keeping track of the records of employees' documents who resigned and are missing.
- There's not enough space to store the files of both Sheraton and Westin transfer associates. Because of this, the files are kept in a messy way, and when someone tries to take them out, some files end up getting torn.
- The absence of a well-organized filing system from the beginning can make it difficult for HR professionals to quickly find specific documents for individuals. It impacts the efficiency of day-to-day operations.
- Sheraton Dhaka doesn't have a digital file system. HR's work mostly involves paperwork, which creates issues like missing documents.

- The HR department must face challenges when important documents get lost or end up in the wrong place. It gets even worse when the audit team unexpectedly comes to check if everything is right. If they find any errors or if some documents are missing, the HR team could get in serious trouble and the whole HR department must explain this to them.

Chapter 05
Activities Undertaken

Chapter 06
Findings, Recommendations and Conclusion

6.1 Findings

- Lack of a digital file management system: As I mentioned before, the absence of a digital file management system may create difficulties in handling paperwork effectively.
- Strict Standards for Trainees: Trainees at Sheraton are sometimes at risk of being let go for minor mistakes, like improper guest greetings.
- Unexpected Expenses: Sometimes unexpected expenses arise during the pre-opening phase, affecting the budget and financial projections.
- Market Competition: As the room service is not available due to a delayed opening, it may allow other hotels to capture the target audience, potentially affecting Sheraton Dhaka's market share.

- Regularly review the budget to identify and address any potential areas where unexpected expenses may arise. This proactive approach can minimize the impact of expenses.
- Once a hotel opens, advertising about their top-notch room services and providing special offers may entice guests to choose Sheraton over competitors.
