Introduction

Background of GTV

When it was time to make decision from which media house I had need to take my internship. I was searching internship in different TV channel. Several TV channel offered me but I decided to take three month internship from GTV. Because from beginning it was my first choose. GTV is a rising television station and well known TV channel in our country. It is one of most viewed TV station in Bangladesh. GTV is a part of media house of Gazi group. It was launched in 12 June 2012 as a Bengali language digital cable television channel. Golam Dostogir Gazi (Bir Protik) is the Chairman of Gazi Satellite Television Limited and Gazi group.

The channel offers a wide variety of programming including news, movies, dramas, talk shows, sports like cricket and more. It is transmitted from its studio at 25 Segun Bagicha, Dhaka-1100. To telecast Cricket live in 2014 this channel bought television broadcasting right from BCB by spending US$20 million for 6 years (from 2014 to 2020).

GTV is also available in online. It started to telecast live on YouTube through ‘Rabitholl BD Entertainment’. Now anyone can see program of GTV from any corner of the world through YouTube. I am pleased to be a part of such kind of organization.

Syed Ishtique Reza is now the editor-in-chief of GTV news. He is very well known person in Bangladesh. He turns GTV in a different dimension news channel. He is a gentle, polite, educated, learned and well behaved person. Finding loved and care from such kind of person I am really thankful.

What is an Internship?

An internship is a period of time after completing four years of bachelor degree and then work in corporate house at least three months. Internship is the field where a student gathers practical knowledge. Internship breaks down the border of class environment and make student gradually capable with formal official. During internship an interne can realize his/her lacking and he/she has chance to overcome from that lacking by practice and practice. Basically internship is the mid-way between student life and professional life. By training student learned professionalism. They make preparing themselves for their upcoming future.

The value of time and speed of work in government or private organization/office can be realized by go through being an interne. A student mentally prepared himself/herself according to job he/she done during internship period. They get new manner, new official language, new rules and regulation. During these time student combined their theoretical knowledge with practical life.

Basically in a short word, it can say that internship is the transition period for a student to prepare owns self for next professional life. Preparing in this three months a student being more comfort for his/her near professional life.

Significance of Internship

After completing bachelor degree from a University a student need to take part in an internship program. It is too much important for a student to learn how to being professional. And during internship period of time a student learn how to be a professional. In four years bachelor program a student learn theoretical knowledge but they have lack of experience how to implement that practically. I think last three month it was great opportunity for me to take part in an internship work. During this time I experienced practical implement of theoretical knowledge and gathered huge amount of practical knowledge. I learned how to write an OOV (Out Of Vision) and package news for TV. I learned how to be professional maintain official rules and regulation.

Last four years at Daffodil international University I learned theoretical knowledge. Department of journalism and mass communication gave me chance to took 128 credit programs. Our teachers taught us very well and we took core test from every program. And last three month GTV gave me another chance to implement my theoretical knowledge in practical field. No doubt to say this internship plays a significance role in my life. Hope this will help me to find a better job.

Also I can adjust this experience in my CV. In this modern world every media house wants an experienced rather than an inexperienced.

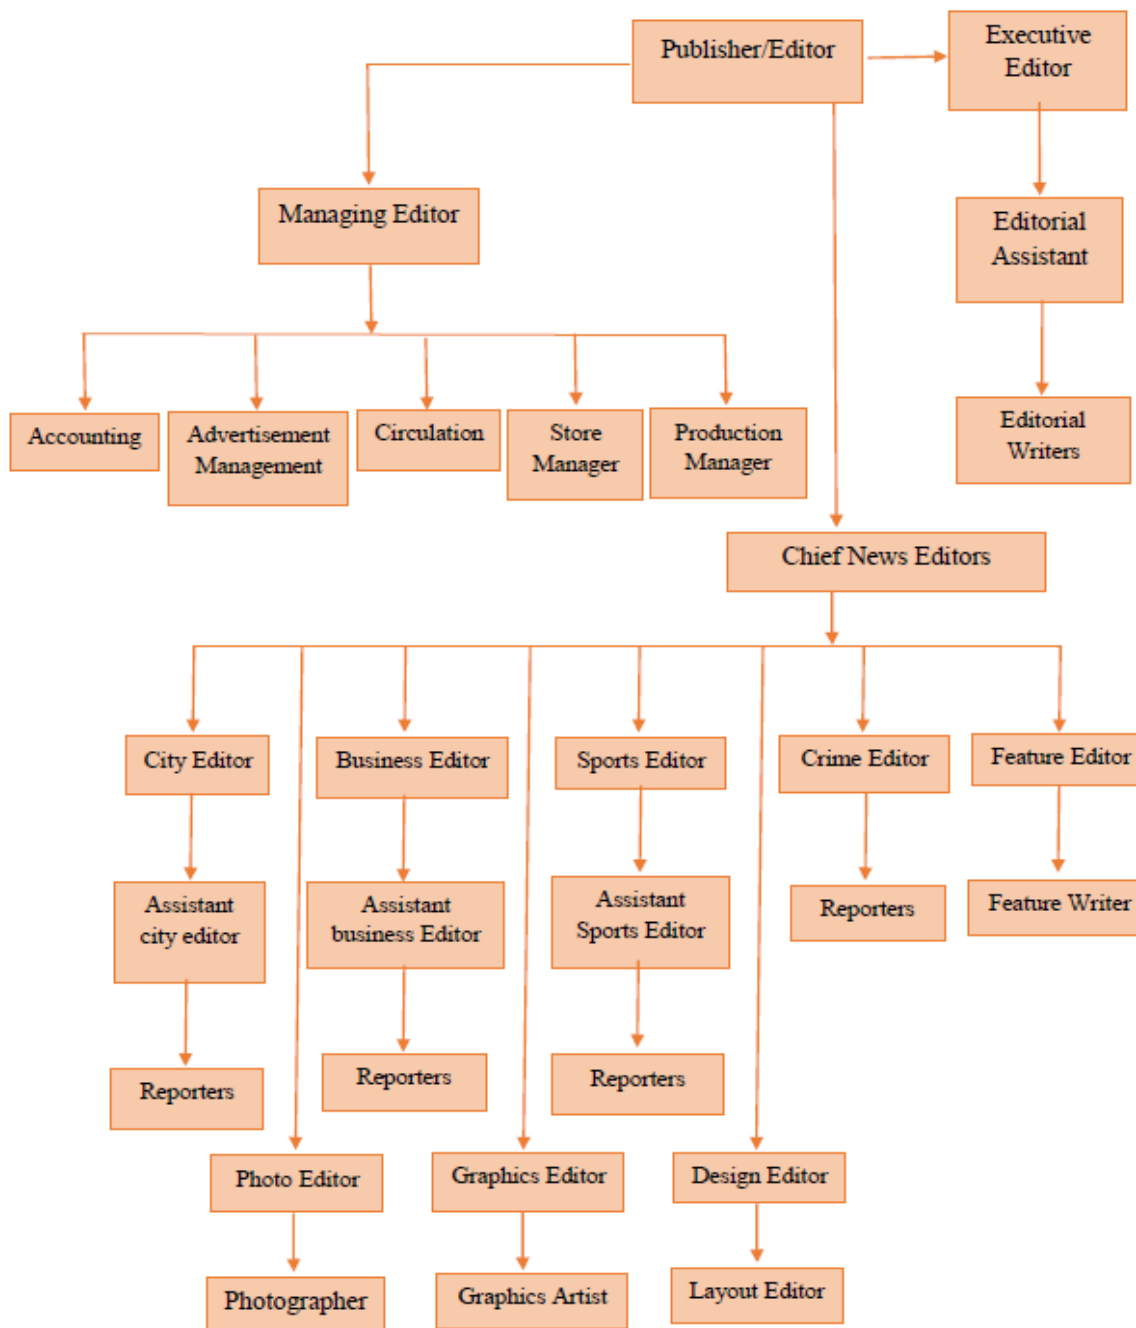

Appearance of GTV

Appearance of GTV on Rabitholl:

Organogram of GTV

Supervisor at GTV

During my internship she gave me a lot of knowledge about how to cover international beat. She trained me so that I can cover every beat of journalism. I think it was good luck for me to go through under her supervision. Not only she trained me for wrote news beside she taught me how to use technology for being a 360 degree smart journalist. Without her such kind of dedication, I cannot complete my internship in proper way. Beside she taught me about professionalism. I think in near future her guidance help me to be a better journalist.

Chapter Three

Learning Experiences

Knowledge gathering/ learning

At GTV it was great opportunity for me to gather practical knowledge about journalism. I worked there as a reporter in international desk. I learned a lot from GTV. It gave me chance to take test every beats of journalism. Experienced with news writing capability, I also handy with used of technology. A lot of new experienced I gathered during internship at GTV. Here a list of experienced-

Regularly read huge amount of international news:

Generally I never used to read international news portal or news feeds. But during my internship period at GTV daily I read at least 10 international news feeds .It was totally different experienced for me to read international daily's. I gather definitely good amount of knowledge during this time. And new reading habits grow up to me to read international daily regularly.

Writing news for OOV (Out of Vision) and package:

During my internship at GTV it was my daily duty to write OOVs (out of vision) and package. To translating the news and story in a present participle format that was totally new experienced for me.

Practical experience:

University mainly gave me chance to gather theoretical knowledge rather than practical experienced. But I gathered practical experience during internship at GTV. The thing I learned from my task book, GTV was the place to combined theoretical knowledge to practical experienced.

Tools and technologies Used

During this modern era of communication no one can exist without technologically sharp. At GTV I learned how to write news at 'AP ENPS' news writing software. It was totally new software for me to introduce. 'AP ENPS' was networking system; easily one data can transmit to another computer. I was quite impressed to learn about its working system.

I also worked on 'TMPGEnc video Mastering works 5' Video converting software. It was also quite new software for me to know take experience. By using it low quality video footage can be turned into HD quality. That was surprising me to watch. I learned very consciously every format of video converting software.

At GTV I also worked with Microsoft office word to write news story.

At edit room I worked at 'Final Cut PRO' video editing software. It was new software for me to work with this software. That was great experienced to meet new technological use.

Special experience

During work at GTV I have seen the power of news media. Renowned 'Washington Post' Journalist Jamal Khashoggia was murder at Turkey Saudi consulate in a dramatic way. Saudi Arabia denied knowing Jamal Khashoggi murdered. Actually what happened inside Istambul Saudi consulate no one know nothing anything about that. But news media cover follow up news one after another. Media play a vital role and forced Saudi Arabia authority to tell about the truth what had happened with journalist Jamal Khashoggi. Full world concerned about Khashoggi murdered case only for news media. Newspaper and electronic media regally covered follow up news. Still yet they cover follow up story about the incident though almost two and half month has gone after the incident. Now CIA said that Saudi prince Mohammad Bin Salam behind it. During my internship at GTV, I covered at least more than 30 follow up news about journalist Jamal Khashoggi murdered case. It was really special experienced for me to cover this big issue. I saw the power of media to bring the light of truth in front world. As an internship journalist Jamal Khashoggi murdered case issue covering was great experience for me.

Chapter Four

Evaluation of Learning

Differences between academic learning and practical work

It was new experience to correlate with practical learning and academic learning. The person who can combine two learning together, he/she can be prepared for doing their next future journey very smoothly. At GTV it was great chance for me to combined academic learning and practical learning. In last four years I learned theoretical knowledge but cannot exhibit that in lacking of implement field. GTV was the place where I implemented my theoretical knowledge. It is modern technology base and well equipment base TV station.

Current world is faster than previous. Now every second have value and during my worked at GTV I can realize value of time in electronic media. Because last four years, we had got enough time to finish our assignment. But at practical life I got only 10 to 15 minutes to complete an OOV (out of vision) story. A package story needed to complete within 20 to 25 minutes. Our university teachers gave us minimum 7 days to complete an assignment but at practical life 7 day turns into 10 to 25 minutes.

During produce a news story we have need to search 5W, 1H inside the story. This theoretical learning helped me a lot to write news story. I always search the answer of 5W, 1H during writing my story. I also followed inverted pyramid structure during writing my package and OOVs. Really this theoretical learning helped to complete my package and OOVs properly. It was good luck for me to combine my theoretical learning with practical work. My supervisor was very happy to see my news sense. Last four years these senses grew up to learn theoretical knowledge.

Practice of practical journalism is quite different from theoretical learning. But without theoretical knowledge no one can be better journalist. Though some different have between practical knowledge and theoretical knowledge. But it was same flower from different branches.

Expectation and Experience

As a student of journalism and mass communication, last four years I learned my lesson properly. But truly say I was feared about my internship work. Before joining at GTV I was tensed about what should need to do, how the practical world journalism going on. But after joining at GTV all of my fears had gone. I am really great full to my supervisor Serazum Munira. She made my path too smooth to enjoy my work.

Generally I was always feared about use of new technology. But my supervisor encourage me in a way that now I liked to use more and more new technology. I learned video converting at 'TMPGEnc video mastering work 5' software, video editing at 'Final cut PRO' and use news writing software on 'AP ENPS'. It was beyond my expectation to reduce technological fear from myself during this internship. I was really lucky to go through under supervisor like a person Serazum Munira.

I think my future journalism career will quite easier. I am thankful to GTV authority.

I am really happy to be a part of this media house. It was joyous time for me to work at here because at least more than 200 plus of my story have been telecasted.

No doubt to say, as like me not too many student can find chance to telecast own work at electronic media during internship.

Last three months I had wrote a lot of story. In there I was ready to face new challenge and overcame from there very smoothly. Now I am handy with writing OOVs and package news. I was punctual with my job.

Last four years, my university teachers taught to enrich knowledge. For that I want to show my graduate towards them. And thanks to Daffodil authority for giving me chance to take bachelor degree from Daffodil International University.

On 2 October, Jamal Khashoggi, a well-known journalist and critic of the Saudi government, walked into the country's consulate in Istanbul, where he was murdered.

Saudi Arabia's public prosecutor has said that Khashoggi was killed inside the building on the orders of an intelligence officer.

Turkish officials however say they have evidence, including gruesome audio recordings, that the journalist was killed by a team of Saudi agents on orders that came from the highest levels.

The steady stream of disturbing allegations, along with the complex diplomatic situation, means that it can be difficult to keep track of the full story.

So here is what we know about the case.

Who was Jamal Khashoggi?

As a prominent journalist, he covered major stories including the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan and the rise of Osama Bin Laden for various Saudi news organisations.

For decades, he was close to the Saudi royal family and also served as an adviser to the government.

But he fell out of favour and went into self-imposed exile in the US last year. From there, he wrote a monthly column in the Washington Post in which he criticised the policies of Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman.

- Who was Jamal Khashoggi?

In his first column for the newspaper, Khashoggi said he feared being arrested in an apparent crackdown on dissent overseen by the prince since he became first in line to succeed his father King Salman.

"The people being arrested are not even being dissidents, they just have an independent mind," he told the BBC's Newshour programme three days before he disappeared.

California wildfires: Camp Fire nearly fully contained

California wildfires

California's deadliest wildfire is almost fully under control, officials said, as fresh rain forecasts brought relief but also fears of landslides.

The Camp Fire, centred in and round the town of Paradise northeast of San Francisco, is now 95% contained.

Forecasts of fresh rainfall could help extinguish the remaining flames, but might also hinder rescue efforts.

At least 83 people died in the blaze, and more than 500 remain missing.

- The day Paradise burned down
- Wildfire survivors: 'We swam to safety'

Workers have been combing through the debris from more than 10,000 homes that were burned down by the fire.

Hundreds of people - along with cadaver dogs - swept through the debris of Paradise and surrounding areas in the search for the missing, wading through ash that officials fear could turn into a thick paste with the onset of rain.

Why is the MP vote on Brexit important?

EUROPEAN PHOTOPRESS AGENCY

The prime minister needs MPs to approve her deal in order to go ahead with her Brexit plans

This vote is important as Mrs May needs MPs to give their approval to her deal in order to go ahead with her Brexit plans.

Without a majority of them doing this, she cannot make Brexit happen how she would like it to.

What will happen at the Brexit vote?

MPs in Parliament will vote on Mrs May's deal - and nobody knows if they will approve it or not.

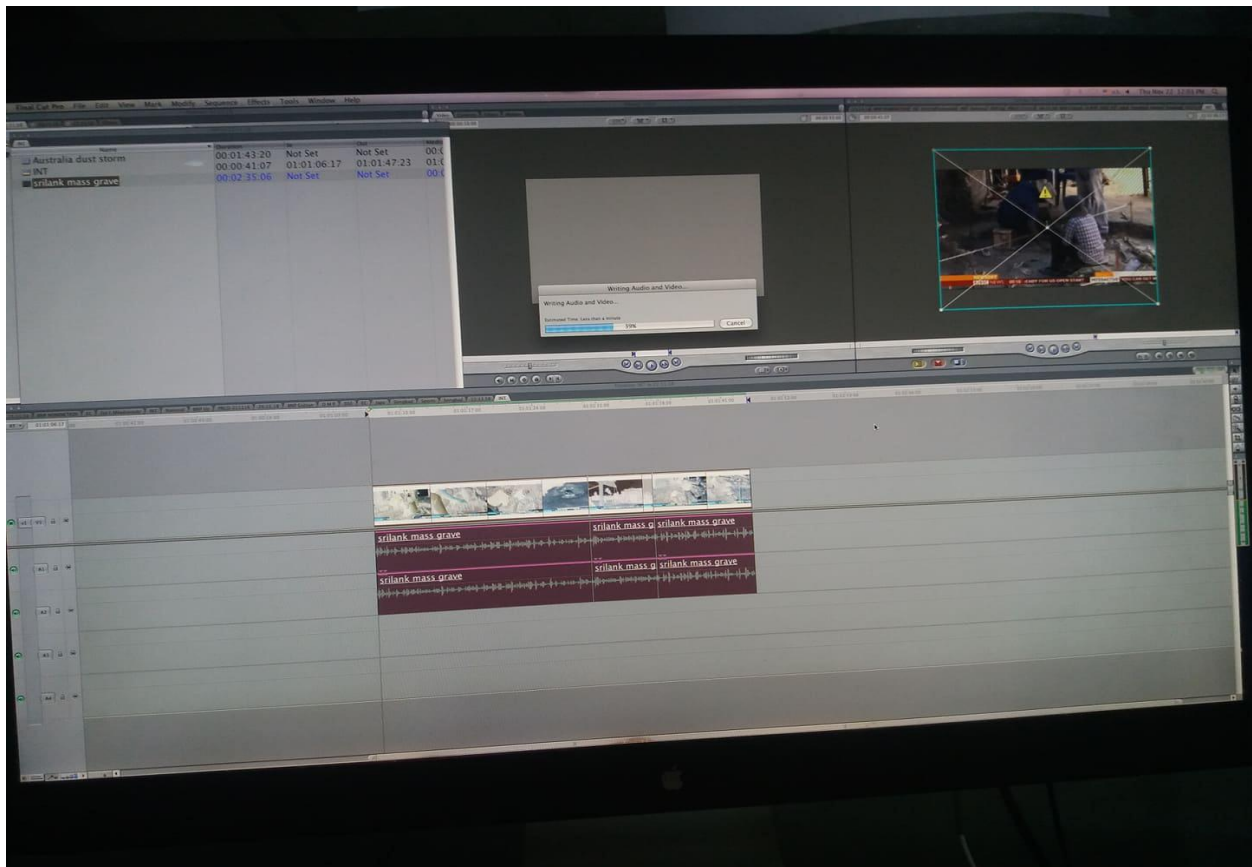

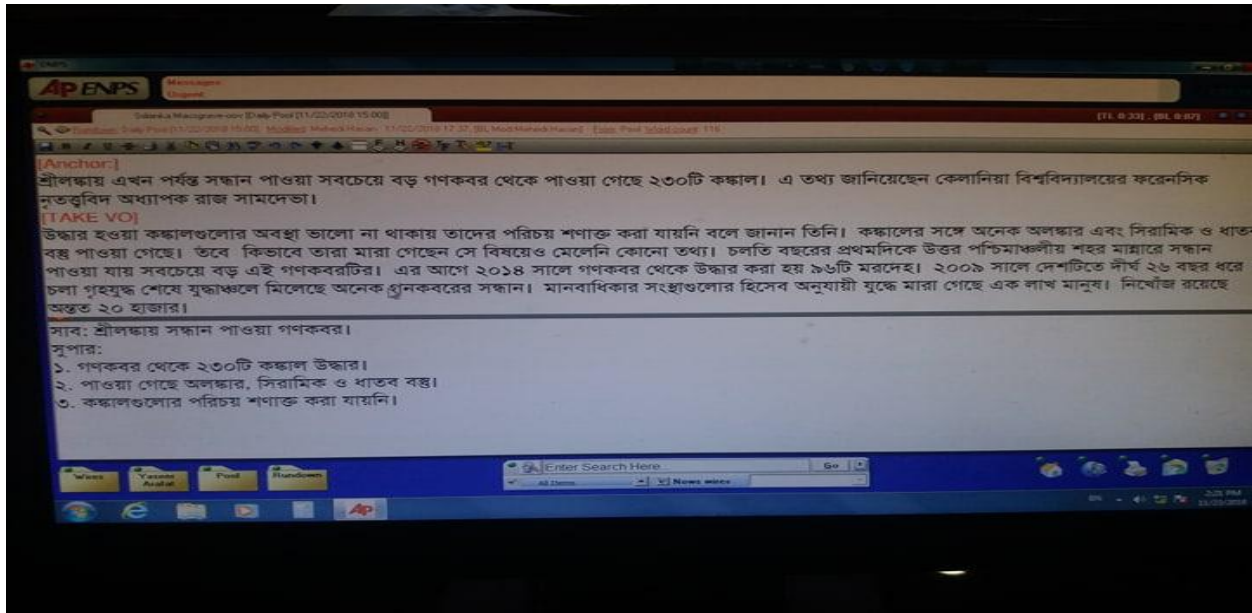

Labour, the Lib Dems, the Scottish National Party (SNP), the Democratic Unionist Party (DUP) and many Conservative MPs are set to vote against it.

The prime minister relies on the 10 DUP MPs to vote on her side when she has votes in Parliament, in order to have what is called a majority. So the fact that the DUP is against the deal could make winning the vote difficult. Not only that, but there are many others - including MPs from her own party - who aren't expected to support her deal either.

Some who say they cannot support her plans might abstain instead of voting against it (when they decline to say yes or no), but Mrs May will need enough votes supporting the deal to press ahead with her plans.

What happens if Parliament approves the deal?

Leaders from the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) have agreed on a modest increase in oil production from next month.

The agreement on Friday came after a week of tense negotiations amid calls from major consumers to help reduce the price of crude and avoid a supply shortage.

Top OPEC producer Saudi Arabia said the move would translate into a nominal output rise of around 1 million barrels per day (bpd), or one percent of global supply.

Iraq, however, said the real increase would be around 770,000 bpd because several countries that had suffered production declines would struggle to reach full quotas.

Iran, OPEC's third-largest producer, had demanded the organisation reject calls from Trump for an increase in oil supply, arguing that the US has contributed to a recent rise in prices by imposing sanctions on Iran and fellow member Venezuela.

By agreeing to collectively raise output by a million barrels, member countries are simply committing to comply fully with the deal struck in late 2016 - and the final OPEC communique makes no mention of the additional one million target.

ISLAMABAD (Reuters) - Pakistani Prime Minister Imran Khan met with a U.S. peace envoy on Wednesday and pledged his help to find a political settlement to the long-running war in neighboring Afghanistan.

The visit to Islamabad by Zalmay Khalilzad, U.S. special representative to Afghanistan, followed President Donald Trump's request for Pakistan's help in finding an end to the 17-year-old war between Taliban insurgents and the western-backed Afghan government.

Lion Air crash: Indonesia to inspect Boeing 737-Max 8 planes

30 October 2018

f t Share

Indonesia has ordered inspections on all the country's commercial Boeing 737-Max 8 planes, after one crashed into the sea with 189 people on board.

The Lion Air jet went down shortly after take-off near the capital, Jakarta, on Monday. There are no known survivors.

Searchers have recovered debris, bodies and personal items. They are looking for the fuselage and flight recorders.

Boeing launched its 737-Max 8 model last year.

The plane that crashed went into service just a few months ago.

On Tuesday Indonesia's transport ministry said all Max 8 aircraft belonging to Indonesian commercial airlines would be inspected, but it stopped short of grounding them.

Meanwhile Lion Air, the country's largest low-cost airline, said it would meet a Boeing team on Wednesday.

Meanwhile Lion Air, the country's largest low-cost airline, said it would meet a Boeing team on Wednesday.

"We have many questions for them. This was a new plane," Lion Air director Daniel Puhut told reporters.

Boeing has said it stands "ready to provide technical assistance to the accident investigation".

Indonesia, a vast archipelago, is heavily reliant on air travel but many of its airlines have a poor safety record.

Lion Air was banned from flying into European airspace until 2016.

Why did the plane crash?

We do not know yet.

Flight JT610 was heading for the western city of Pangkal Pinang when it went down 13 minutes after taking off from Jakarta.

Officials say the pilot had asked to return to Soekarno-Hatta airport before losing contact with air traffic control.

A log obtained by the BBC showed the plane had experienced technical problems while flying from Bali to Jakarta the previous day.

The log showed one instrument was giving "unreliable" airspeed readings and the captain had to hand over to the first officer. Altitude readings also differed on the captain and first officer's instruments.

Lion Air chief executive Edward Sirait said on Tuesday that the plane had been repaired before being allowed to fly again.

One small Indonesian town was drowned in mud by the natural disaster, with before and after pictures revealing the extent of damage.

Bodies are still being recovered from ruins of buildings in neighbourhoods hit by liquefaction, a phenomenon that turns the ground into a rolling quagmire, in the south of city.

In shocking aerial footage from the Balerio and Petobo towns, mud can be seen shoving thousands of homes and buildings as well as green fields out of its way, tearing the area apart.

Indonesia's top security minister, Wiranto, who uses a single name, said the government is mulling the possibility of halting the search and turning Balerio and Petobo, another neighbourhood in Palu, into mass graves.

Petobo disappeared into the earth as the force of the quake liquified its soft soil, and the official said efforts to retrieve bodies are problematic in those neighbourhoods, where homes were sucked into the earth, burying possibly hundreds of victims.

Photos of the devastated areas have shown the catastrophic effect on the coastal area.

Afghanistan: Taliban kills police officers in Farah province raid

A report by a US watchdog said nearly 30,000 Afghan security forces have been killed since 2015 [EPA]

At least 20 police officers have been killed in a Taliban ambush in Afghanistan's western Farah province, an official said.

Dadullah Qaneh, a member of the provincial council in Farah, said four policemen, including the deputy provincial police chief, were wounded in the attack on the police convoy on Sunday afternoon near Lash wa Juwayn district.

Qaneh said the newly appointed chief of the district was also killed.

Another council member, Abdul Samad Salehi, said the convoy was on its way to the district to introduce the new district police chief when it came under attack.

In the third quarter of 2018, the number of soldiers and police personnel deployed across Afghanistan fell to 312,328 - nearly 9,000 fewer than only a year ago and the lowest level for any comparable period since 2012.

Estimated figures for 2015 show 5,000 were killed that year, with the remaining 28,529 casualties occurring since then.

Casualty figures for Afghan forces have been kept under wraps since 2017 at the request of Kabul, but NATO's Resolute Support mission in Afghanistan recently told SIGAR that this summer's toll was worse than ever.

Mexico plans to deport up to 500 people who tried to “violently” and “illegally” cross the border into the US on Sunday, the interior ministry has said.

Dozens of people ran towards the border crossing between Tijuana and San Diego on Sunday, where US border officers used teargas to repel them. Amid heated rhetoric from Donald Trump and confusion over a reported deal to keep asylum seekers in Mexico, all traffic was halted for several hours on Sunday at the busy border crossing.

US Customs and Border Protection said traffic in both directions was suspended at the San Ysidro port of entry, before later allowing traffic through again.

Migrants approaching the border were met with teargas after a few tried to breach the fence separating the countries. US agents fired the gas, according to an Associated Press reporter on the scene. Children were screaming and coughing in the mayhem.

Four Palestinians were killed on Monday, and two more on Tuesday, as the Israeli army launched dozens of air strikes on the Gaza Strip and hundreds of rockets were fired from the besieged enclave.

The Gaza Ministry of Health identified the six slain Palestinians as Mohammed Zakariya al-Tatari, 27, Mohammed Zuhdi Odeh, 22, Homad Mohammed al-Nahal, 23, Moussa Iyad Abd al-Aal, 22, Khaled Riyadh al-Sultan, 26, and MUSAAB HOSS, 20. Another 25 Palestinians have been wounded since Monday afternoon.

One Palestinian was also reportedly killed after a rocket from Gaza hit his home in the Israeli city of Ashkelon, Haaretz reported. The report added that the rocket critically injured two women in the house.

The death of the 40-year-old, a Palestinian originally from the West Bank city of Hebron, is the first confirmed death caused by the barrage of rocket fire from Gaza since Monday afternoon in a flare-up following a deadly Israeli special forces operation in the enclave.

The Israeli army struck at least 70 targets in Gaza, while 300 rockets were fired from the Palestinian territory toward Israel throughout Monday, Israeli media reported.

A further Israeli strike also killed a Palestinian on Tuesday, Gaza's health ministry said, raising the death toll in the enclave to five in less than 24 hours.

An eyewitness in Gaza told Middle East Eye the Israeli military on Monday bombed the building that houses the Hamas-linked Al-Aqsa television station in Gaza City.

Local and international media reported that the building was completely destroyed in the attack, while nearby structures were also damaged.

There was no immediate word of casualties, Reuters reported.

The air strike came after the Israeli military fired five non-exploding missiles near the building, Palestinian officials and witnesses told Reuters.

"Just like the way we deal with the previous attacks, we are handling this one," said Rami Abu Dayya, a cameraman who has worked for Al-Aqsa TV for the past 14 years and witnessed four separate Israeli attacks on the building in that time.
